Cycle rides mapped out for both sides of Tweed

Booklet 'far more' than a cyclists guide to Berwick

KIRSTY SMYTH

kirsty.smyth@tweeddalepress.co.uk @BAdvertiser

A curiosity for the surroundings, a keen interest in locally-produced food and a love of cycling have combined to create a new book for Berwick.

Five Cycle Rides from Berwick upon Tweed by Tony Houghton, founder of the Berwick Cyclist's Touring Club (CTC), is now available around the town.

Using a selection of cycle routes as a framework, Tony guides readers around the local by-ways, north and south of the Tweed. The routes cater for all levels of enthusiasm, from a quiet eight mile potter around Berwick to a 44-mile route which takes in the best of Berwickshire's coastal scenery.

For the even more ambitious two or more routes could be combined to make for glorious touring on long summer days.

A review of the booklet says: "Do not be misled by the title of this booklet. It is far more than a cyclists' guide to Berwick. Tony has combined curiosity about his surroundings, a keen interestin locally-produced food and a love of cycling to produce this little gem."

Each route is illustrated by a map, places of interest are pointed out, and a good range of refreshment opportunities provided. For the self-sufficient there are even suggestions for obtaining picnic ingredients.

The rides are put into their historical context, with a brief history from earliest times to the present day and map references for clues to the past which might otherwise be missed.

Berwick CTC wants a quality cycle route from Berwick south to Beal, like this one at Alnmouth. Inset, Tony's book.

For strangers arriving in Berwick-with or without a bike - this is an invaluable introduction to what the area has to offer. But those of you to whom these roads are old familiar friends will also find much to learn from Tony's guide.

As founding member of Berwick CTC, Tony organises group rides in the local area.

More recently he has become interested in extending the group's activities to include campaigning for better cycling conditions and publicising routes and facilities for cyclists, which in turn would enhance 'Do not be misled by the title of the booklet - It is far more than a cyclists' guide to Berwick'

The rides are put into historical context, and places of interest are pointed out tourism opportunities.

The first priorities include the signing and development of a safe cycle route through Berwicktown from Spittaltowards Paxton; the creation of a high quality cycle route from Berwicksouth to Beal, in particular a hard surface route from Spittal to Cocklawburn and from Goswick to Beal; and the creation of a safe crossing of the A1 at Cheswick Buildings.

For more information go to www.ctc.org.uk/local-groups/berwick-cyclists

The booklet, priced £3.50, is available from the Tourist Information Centre, Grieves, Wilson Cycles and the YHA.

Skywatche for solar ec

The recent auror gion is set to be for a near-total solar On Friday, March tal solar eclipse vacross northern Northumberland placed to see apply a 90 per cent ec

Change

Under new laws minute grace per fines for being ju be it in a paid or by the Government forcement which

New campa for Rape Cr

Northumbria Po Crime Commissi Baird is support new Rape Crisis 'Rape #we belive vivid, eye catchin paign artwork is raising the profit Crisis and the we

Police meda

The service median ex-chief const Roxburgh, Selkir wick, who retire 1911, are up for sa folk. John Morde was awarded the Police medal, the Police medal and nation medal. Lockdales, the au

Lockdales, the ar of Martlesham n wich, will put the the hammer on M

